Top of the page: NextGen is a program to modernize the National Airspace System (NAS) and improve the efficiency, safety, and capacity of the U.S. air transportation system. It involves a wide range of technologies, including new navigation systems, improved communication, and enhanced surveillance. The program is being implemented in several phases, with the first phase focusing on the implementation of the Performance-Based Navigation (PBN) system. This phase includes the development and testing of new procedures and the deployment of the system to a wide range of airports. The second phase focuses on the implementation of the NextGen Traffic Management System (NTM), which will provide a more efficient way to manage air traffic. The third phase focuses on the implementation of the NextGen Weather Program, which will provide improved weather information and forecasting. The program is being implemented by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) in partnership with a number of other agencies, including the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).
